MSVS – looking forward

FOREWORD

Ever since its inception, Manav Sadhan Vikas Sanstha (MSVS) has had agenda for the sustainable development of the weaker sections of the society in rural and urban settings, with the downtrodden being at the core of its varied activities.

A brainchild of Mr. Suresh Prabhu, its founder chairperson, MSVS has had a cheered history. While it has many noteworthy achievements to its credit with major results in mitigating hardship of the underprivileged, it has also faced several challenges in its journey encompassing two decades. Its achievements in the arena of education and skill development are truly scintillating.

Its pioneering project, a Nursing College spread over five acres at Anav, a village in Kudal Tehsil of the picturesque Sindhudurg district on the west coast of Maharashtra, is the first ever such institution in that backward area imparting nursing education to the women. Earlier these women had to move to metros like Pune and Mumbai for nursing courses. Jana Shikshan Sansthan, its skill development institute under the aegis of Central Human Resources Development Ministry, was the first rural Jana Shikshan Sansthan in India. These institutions have collectively imparted livelihood skills to over 80,000 persons, majority of whom are gainfully employed. MSVS was instrumental in computerization of schools, formation of INTERNET KIOSKS, Eco Clubs, creation of Sanskritik Konkan, a sports and cultural event. There is lot more to MSVS and you may visit www.msvs.org.in for more information.

The journey, however, was arduous too. There was a perpetual crunch of funds; Government machinery was painfully slow; infrastructure project got caught in the red tape, volunteers, who were looking for quick fix solutions or quick upward mobility had little patience to walk the talk. Many deserted but many marched along. Through all this MSVS survived and strived to make a difference. MSVS recognized that the success of a charitable institution depends on forging sustainable partnerships, be it with likeminded NGOs, academic institutions and Government agencies, or with the corporate sector. Further, it leveraged such strategic partnerships rising to the challenges and creating sustainable livelihood for people of Konkan and also shanties of Greater Bombay. MSVS is accountable for change; it believes in teaching a person to earn his own money, it advocates dignity of labour and it upholds empowerment of each and every person in a given community.

MSVS has now embarked on a new journey. It is dedicating its efforts to creating a band of skill workers for the health, food, tourism industries using technology creatively. It is encouraging entrepreneurship and dealing with issues like financial inclusion, women empowerment, etc.

The present annual report (year 2014 to year 2017) talks about MSVS's journey over past several years, its achievements, moments of fame and failure, challenges faced and accolades received. The communities in our areas of work remain a bedrock partner for all our endeavors. MSVS has been a 'voice of conscience' for the downtrodden all along, with its efforts directed towards changing lives and helping people achieve their full potential.

2018 is promising to be an eventful year for MSVS. MSVS is multiplying its various activities, forging bonds with more partners, creating more infrastructure and plans to impact many more lives positively. At Oras, near Kudal, it is coming up with a skill development centre; at Anav it is augmenting its nursing infrastructure, at Kopar Khairane, Navi Mumbai, it is building an entrepreneurship development institute.

Years ago, MSVS founder chairman Mr. Suresh Prabhu and his committed band of colleagues from various walks of life had a dream. A dream of changing peoples' lives for better, injecting prosperity in a backward region like Konkan, creating a sustainable and replicable model of development. The dream is becoming a reality. The MSVS story will remain incomplete without the mention of the role played by its various stakeholders in turning the dream in reality.

We take this opportunity to thank all those who have lent a helping hand in some way or the other. This includes our Funding Partners, Trustees, National and International Advisors, Employees, Volunteers, Government Agencies, Corporate, Community Members and Knowledge Partners.

MSVS is aware that the aspiration and action set in motion two decades ago will influence and impact several future generations. We are striving to achieve the maximum with the resources entrusted to us by our partners. We will continue to learn and improve further. We are working hard at accelerating the pace of change. Our goal however, remains unchanged: to usher in a new era that is inclusive of all and that brings in prosperity to all. We are expecting this year to be the game changer!

Hope all of you will join us in this mission.

Thanking you

Sincerely,

UMA SURESH PRABHU

MR. SURESH PRABHU'S VISION STATEMENT

Providing the right wherewithal to enable its citizens to enjoy good quality life should be the goal of any government. Governments and both private and public agencies, and also the voluntary sector have done humongous work to achieve this goal. A lot has been achieved and a lot needs to be achieved too. India still ranks low in terms of the Human Development Index. In many parts of the country, people still do not have access to basic healthcare, potable water and education.

A large percentage of our children are still undernourished. How could one find a solution to this problem? Could we evolve an alternative framework of governance? What could that be?

Some like-minded colleagues from various walks of life and I collectively visualized a workable and replicable model of holistic human development that aims at empowering communities, supporting civil society initiatives and channelizing entrepreneurial energy. ManavSadhanVikasSanstha (MSVS) was thus born.

A public charitable trust formed two decades ago, MSVS, seeks to bring about a holistic development of communities through proactive participation of both governmental and non-governmental stakeholders. It integrates economic, physical, ecological intellectual and spiritual aspects in its developmental strategy in a holistic manner. The idea is to assign a greater meaning to life.

MSVS was conceived as a pan India movement. However, we chose Konkan, a beautiful region on the west coast of the Maharashtra state as our initial project area. The reason was not far to seek:

- ❖ Despite a high level of literacy and abundance of natural resources Konkan was underdeveloped.
- ❖ Almost one-third of its population was under the poverty line.
- ❖ Perennial problem of drinking water during summer despite receiving heavy rainfall during monsoons.
- ❖ No impactful presence on the country's tourist map, despite its enviable scenic beauty and rich cultural heritage.
- ❖ Mass migration of its male population to Metros in search of livelihood opportunities.

More importantly, the region, which has close to 2000 villages falls in Rajapur – Ratnagiri Parliamentary Constituency, from where I got elected to the Lok Sabha for four consecutive terms. I had the people's mandate to work for the development of that area.

The MSVS team chose the following areas as their thrust areas:

- ❖ Education
- ❖ Women empowerment
- ❖ Rural development
- ❖ Technology
- ❖ Ecology & environment
- ❖ Health care
- ❖ Tourism
- ❖ Livelihood generation
- ❖ Entrepreneurship development

The success of any developmental model hinges on two crucial elements:

1. Institutionalization
2. Creation of a committed cadre

Proactive participation of the stakeholders is another key factor. The first step was to collect data from all the villages through a baseline survey. The data was utilized to evolve a developmental strategy. The total population of the area was divided into six target groups:

- ❖ Farmers
- ❖ Women
- ❖ Youth
- ❖ Fisherman
- ❖ Backward classes
- ❖ Ex servicemen

We thus evolved an organic structure by picking up a representative each of the above mentioned target groups at various levels- from the smallest unit, which is the village to the highest one, which is the district level. We created a set of complimentary activities for these groups. We created a network of 105 local voluntary organization spread over all the villages. Each of these NGOs was made responsible for development of about 10 neighboring villages. We created for each 10 villages a hub of activities called Parivartan Kendra (Transformation Centre).

The chain of volunteers from village to the district level was the link between the people and the Government at different levels- Local, State and Central. These formal structures ensured community participation in the development process. The importance of the structure lies in institutionalizing the developmental efforts. This structure was akin to a permanent, two-way pipeline through which the information about government schemes reached the people, who sent back their feedback regarding implementation of the schemes.

The 105 NGO's were carefully chosen based on certain criteria. Each Parivartan Kendra had the following activities:

- ❖ Gymnasiums for physical fitness
- ❖ Employability training for economic development

- ❖ Internet kiosks and libraries for intellectual development
- ❖ Eco clubs to bring about environment awareness
- ❖ Motivational lectures and bhajans for spiritual development
- ❖ Encouragement of local performing arts and crafts for cultural development

MSVS collected and analyzed all Central, State and Local Self-Government schemes pertaining to its target groups. The schemes were presented in a book form. At the Parivartan Kendras, group representatives explained schemes pertaining to that particular group to the people from that group. The group representatives then prepared proposals on behalf of different members to be sent to different government departments. A follow up was also taken from time to time.

MSVS started a vocational training centre called Jana Shikshan Sansthan (JSS) to impart employability skills to the people. Now into its 18th year, JSS has trained several thousand people. As part of our women empowerment program, MSVS created a network of 2,000 Self Help Group. MSVS also started a College of Nursing to provide health care education to women in that area. We were the first ones to start computer education in schools, Internet Kiosks and Eco clubs. The list is long.

It has been a long and arduous journey for MSVS. Many goals have been achieved; many more need to be achieved. While continuing to work in Konkan, MSVS is also exploring other areas. We have started work in Mumbai's slums, and we are building entrepreneurship development institute in Navi Mumbai. Our goal still remains the same: creating an India where every single person is empowered, employable and earning his/her livelihood. Although I am not formally associated with MSVS today due to my other responsibilities, MSVS will always remain close to my heart. As a person instrumental in building this organization, my best wishes are with MSVS, its trustees, employees and beneficiaries, especially now when it is poised to take a giant leap in the social arena.

MSVS since Inception.....

Manav Sadhan Vikas Sanstha (MSVS) a public charitable trust formed in 1997, seeks to bring about a holistic and integrated development of underprivileged communities, and underdeveloped regions through proactive participation of both governmental and non-governmental stakeholders. MSVS visualizes a type of development that integrates economic, social, physical, ecological, intellectual and spiritual aspects in a holistic manner. The mission of MSVS is to promote a holistic and integrated development of underprivileged communities and underdeveloped regions.

The Objectives of MSVS include:

- ❖ Natural Resource management
- ❖ Employment generation/ Entrepreneurship development through formal and non-formal education
- ❖ Institutionalization / Creation of a committed cadre
- ❖ Rural development/ providing basic amenities to the rural population

Activities of MSVS:

- 1. Jana Shikshan Sansthan, Sindhudurg: The first effort was to extend non-formal education to the marginalized and underprivileged sections in the region and thereby to make them self-reliant and empowered. A Jana Shikshan Sansthan (JSS) was thus set up with the support of the Government of India in Kudal, Sindhudurg district to run vocational education programs for the school and college drop outs, neo-literates, illiterates and women. The activity was then extended to some tehsils of the neighboring Ratnagiri district.
- 2. Computer Education through Ford Foundation: During the time when computer education got introduced in schools in Sindhudurg and Ratnagiri district many schools could raise resources to install computer labs for the purpose. But it was observed that there was a dearth of proper instructors. MSVS developed a project with the support from Ford Foundation to strengthen the school computer laboratories, guiding and training the potential school teachers to implement the government curriculum for the students of 8th, 9th and 10th standards in selected schools in the target region. Twenty teachers and about 2000 students were benefited by the project. But more important was the benefit accrued to above 5000 residents connected with schools and the students who could get awareness about the computer education through various village meeting organized by MSVS with the help of the project teacher during the project period.
- 3. Parivartan Kendras or Transformation Centers: MSVS set up 'Parivartan Kendras' (PKs) or transformation centers – for over all transformation of the people living in the vicinity of a Centre covering about 10 villages in Sindhudurg district. 'Parivartan Kendras' were perceived as a hub of development activities in a cluster of villages to ensure an all-round development of the people, and a development model /unit with a clearly defined organizational structure for implementing and coordinating programs and schemes. About 46 PKs are in operation. Most commonly conducted activity is the gymnasium, followed by sports competitions, health camps, cultural programs, various trainings and self-help groups.

4. DYANADA (Internet Kiosks): This was MSVS's endeavor to bring the Information Technology revolution to the people of Konkan. In co-operation with the National Informatics Centre, MSVS coined a comprehensive, three-phased program of setting up Internet Kiosks at the block headquarters. Information pertaining to various government schemes, agricultural practices, land record forms, application forms for various certificates issued by the local government was made available at these Internet access centers at the click of the mouse. The program was launched by Dr. Abdul Kalam just before he became the President of India. MSVS started 10 such kiosks in Sindhudurg.
5. Mobile Hospital: A mobile hospital providing minimum diagnostic and surgical facilities was established to transport medical care to the remotest hamlets of the Sindhudurg district and a few tehsils of the neighbouring Ratnagiri district. The program was funded by Organization of Pharmaceutical Producers' India (OPPI).
6. Eco Clubs: With financial assistance from Ministry of Environment and Forests, Government of India, MSVS organized Eco Club in schools in the project area for creating environmental awareness among students. Over 100 schools participated in the project.
7. Grameen Gyan Abhiyan: Under this project MSVS in collaboration with NIIT and ICICI Limited set up Minimally Invasive Education (MIE) kiosks in Banda, Deobagh, Shirgaon, Kalse, and Talawade in Sindhudurg district, Maharashtra. The project aimed to test the concept of minimally invasive education in the above rural and less developed areas, where the occupations of the people are primarily fishing and agriculture. Unmanned kiosks were started to provide the rural children an exposure to computers. The MIE kiosks were certified by the Centre for Knowledge Societies on September 14, 2002.
8. The Global Environmental Facilities (GEF) Small Grants Program: With the help of GEF grants MSVS established "Centers of Learning" in secondary schools in Sindhudurg and Ratnagiri districts for promoting local response to Biodiversity conservation. The goal and purpose of the project was to promote local response of the school children for conserving the natural resources of Ratnagiri and Sindhudurg Districts through various techniques, such as survey of flora and fauna of the regions, demonstration of the conservation of ecologically important (endangered species) plants through establishment of gardens of medicinal plants in and around the schools and create public awareness through formal and non-formal methods among various strata of the society, about the importance of environmental protection.
9. School of Nursing: In 2001, MSVS established School & College of Nursing, first of its kind, in a village called Anav in Sindhudurg district, to cater exclusively to the girls from this economically backward region. Apart from the on-going Diplomas and Degree courses, MSVS is also starting specialized courses in nursing like Primary Care Nurses, Orthopedic Nurses, Cardiac Nurses, and Pediatric Nurses, to augment the health care system in the two districts.
10. Employability Skills Programs in Mumbai: MSVS launched employability skills programs in Mumbai's shanties in 2011 to enable underprivileged women and men to enable them to become self-reliant and live life with dignity. MSVS skill repertoire includes driving (four wheelers), beauty and hair care, henna body art, tailoring, fashion designing and embroidery, artificial jewelry, welding and fabrication, plumbing, and refrigeration and AC repair.

Activity report 2014-15

“Enhancing skills and faster generation of employment” is one of the twelve strategy challenges identified by the Planning Commission for its 12th Five-year plan consultation process.

It is believed that India's economic growth is not generating enough jobs or livelihood opportunities. At the same time, many sectors face manpower shortages. To address both, one indeed needs to revisit the Indian education and training systems; create efficient and accessible labor markets for all skill categories; and encourage the faster growth of small and micro enterprises; in other words bring about a holistic and integrated development of the underprivileged communities.

MSVS skill development activities at Mumbai (2014-15):

12 batches of skill trainings were conducted during the year. The trainings included Tailoring, Beauty care, Mehandi application, Fabric painting and hand embroidery. Overall 209 women/ girls benefitted through the trainings.

Out of the 12 trainings 10 trainings completed and 2 trainings continued to the next year.

10 trainings completed consists of 171 students out of which 162 (94%) completed the course and were certified, 9 (6%) were dropout.

The 2 continued batches had 38 students.

Partnerships:

MSVS and IFFCO Foundation partnership began in January 2012. Both the organizations decided to work on a long-term strategy on skill development/ vocational training and micro enterprise development on an all-India basis, and as the situation may demand, in other countries based on the respective strengths and capabilities of both the organizations. The two organizations decided to get into a five- years agreement to earmark roles and responsibilities to move further.

The live sessions invited women from the local communities to avail of free beauty and hair care treatment.

This demo served a twin purpose:

- MSVS students got an opportunity to hone their skills and gain confidence
- Local women could avail of free treatment

During the year MSVS organized total five-demonstration camps in and around Santacruz East. Students from Beauty Care – Basic and Advance as well as Mehendi students participated in the demos. Around 275 women took the benefit of beauty services such as haircuts and shaping eyebrows, and Mehendi Application etc.
